

Keep Hen Parties Out of Public Places

I was unfortunate enough to have one of your parties thrust at me in a public place.

I assume it was what you call a baby shower, because the female at the head of the table in the restaurant was in a condition that had gone beyond the state of "delicate."

There all of you sat, your shrill cackles echoing excitedly across the room like old hens spotting a new rooster strutting in the henhouse.

You were being oh so daring, using a party in her honor as an excuse to swill that second drink you shouldn't have.

Following the too-loud lunch, one of you, amidst applause, staggered in with presents.

This was presumably supposed to be a surprise to the pregnant one, who opened her mouth wide, let out a piercing shriek, and screamed, "For me?" I gagged.

In a public restaurant, mind you, I watched in fascinated horror as the guest of honor opened the packages and held up for display one pink negligee, three pairs of scanty panties, several pairs of hose, a night cap, a set of pillow cases, a baby blanket, odds and ends of baby clothes, six packages of diapers and a box of something that threw the party into gales of hysteria.

To add to the already tasteless exhibition, one of you got up and made a speech. Either your dentures were overly loose or you shouldn't drink any more.

Applause followed, whereupon the pregnant one forced tears to the eyes. Each of you sniffed in turn, dabbed your nose and clattered out.

If you must give a shower, have it either in your home or in the privacy of some office corner. There you can be totally feminine, giggle to your heart's content, and sneak extra drinks from the bottle without anyone being the wiser.

Keep public places for an exhibition of your femininity wherein you are calm, elegant and lovely. Any other exhibition is out of place. This is so because I say it.

Artist Starts Semester at Marymount

Joseph Mugnaini, artist-illustrator, will begin his third semester at Marymount College as the instructor of the popular mixed media art class in the Palos Verdes Estates campus studio.

He is the winner for three consecutive years of the Pennell Award in Lithography and Etching from the Library of Congress, and represented the United States in the Europe-Middle East intercultural exhibit.

HE HAS DONE illustrations for the Saturday Evening Post, Harper's, Doubleday, Ballantine, Bantam and numerous other publications for new editions of "Ben Hur" and "The Age of the Fable," which are currently on exhibit in the college library.

In association with Mother Bernadette of the Marymount College art department, he is assisting in the collection of a permanent exhibit of representative lithographs and etchings, and has presented the college with his original lithograph, "The Cathedral."

His mixed media art class covers the technique and analysis of drawing and painting, and meets from 10 a.m. until noon on Wednesdays. It is open to both day and extension students, with full college credit.

Faculty Leaders In East

Mrs. Margaret B. Lehman and Julius Sumner Miller, both past presidents of the American Association of Physics Teachers and members of the El Camino College faculty, addressed the AAPT's 31st annual meeting in New York during the past week.

Miller, who has attended the annual meetings for the past 25 years, lectured on "Men and Events of Science Commemorated on Postage Stamps."

The physics professor began his college education at Boston University. He is a one-time Ford Foundation Fellow, and a Carnegie Grant holder, working with the late Albert Einstein at the Institute for Advanced Studies. He has conducted several television series, holds many honors and is listed in "American Man of Science."

MRS. LEHMAN'S lecture, "Physics in the Two-Year Colleges in California," was compiled through questionnaires she sent to 62 junior colleges. Data was supplied through 53 replies.

Mrs. Lehman has a master of arts degree from the University of California at Los Angeles and taught mathematics there for several years. She encourages young women to consider entering engineering research as a career, beginning with a math major beginning in junior high school. Mrs. Lehman has attended the AAPT meetings for the past five years.

Papers presented represented several American colleges and one from West Germany.

New Garden Club Urged In Riviera

Mrs. William Doty, charter member of the Las Colinas Garden Club in Palos Verdes Riviera, will speak Tuesday at a meeting called to form a new garden club for women in the lower Hollywood Riviera area.

The meeting is scheduled for 10 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Ragnar Thorensen of 152 Vista Del Parque. Mrs. Doty will speak on the mechanics of setting up a new club.

Presently interested members attending will be Mrs. Jess Ward, Mrs. Lee Shade, Mrs. R. E. Katherman, Mrs. Richard Dodge. Further information may be obtained by telephoning Mrs. Thorensen at FA 5-0126 or Mrs. Ward at FA 5-6677.
